

Diana Serrano is a Ph.D. candidate and researcher at the Heller School for Social Policy and Management at Brandeis University. Ms. Serrano has over 6 years of experience conducting policy research. In collaboration with the Waltham public school district, her dissertation research is investigating the impacts of children participating in a new two-way language immersion (TWI) program, using a randomized control trial design. Ms. Serrano has expertise in measurement of education development outcomes, particularly in the area of literacy and English proficiency. Ms. Serrano is also currently working on a four-year Office of Planning, Research and Evaluation Child Care Research Partnership study between Brandeis University and the Massachusetts Department of Early Education and Care; conducting interviews with subsidy-receiving families in both English and Spanish.